1	anonymous	I have asked [REDACTED] this question and he said he would like to see disruptive behaviour in lessons tackled more effectively as he feels this has disrupting his learning. He felt this was particularly apparent in English lessons. However I am aware that this is now being addressed through the recent behaviour policy.
2	anonymous	SEND issues for [REDACTED]
3	anonymous	Yes. A better way of cascading sen information (student support plan) to staff and a way of clarifying this has been done. Also a system for all teachers to be able to print off work from student laptops as young people can't access the system. Maybe more training in some of the common SEN. Also I felt the letter about the sessions was possibly not "user friendly" some parents may have struggled to understand what it was or what the point of sessions was.

Positives:

- Well Organised event.
- Knowledgeable staff and responses.
- Opportunities for questions
- Really helpful for parents to support child.

Actions:

- Future sessions on revision techniques. (JLI to feedback to SLT) to ensure on next year's rota.
- RRC made aware that New Behaviour policy is tackling disruptive behaviour in English.
- Feedback to Head of SEN and IT lead about a better way of student work on SEN laptops being printed and returned to teachers.
- A reminder in the Staff Bulletin that SEN plans are available for all students on Bromcom, and the Teams drive and that all staff should be aware of this and have recorded on seating plans.
